

Building corporate health in price effectiveness

Kuroda International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

The commercialization of the minimum cost reduction requirement and the functional requirement is the low profitability of the product price, and the profitability of the enterprise gives the building of the soundness of the enterprise. These make it possible to build a proper profit system for a company by optimizing mass sales in marketing and market access.

These are the ideals of the corporate image in the self-standard of corporate ethics. The flexible working style and corporate office environment in the timeliness provide the correct working motivation and ideal corporate environment.

These are new corporate images in the cutting edge of the times and participation in the market advantage in the principle of competition.

Since these have market demand in terms of product function, design, and convenience, they have the stability of the company in the development of the sales network.

When making decisions with ethics, these are the realizations of good business ethics.

Business operations based on low-cost standards give the company soundness in terms of high efficiency in building IT systems.

Machine production in Industry 4.0 and product management in IT systems can meet their high quality requirements and be cost efficient.

Advertising and sales on the Internet are new possibilities in reducing distribution and sales costs.

These are new forms of enterprise and new market standards for leading-edge enterprises.