

KURODA International

Create the future

Current economic situation and future forecast

KURODA International LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The reality of the corona vortex is that it has changes in corporate finances and spending on national finances, and changes can be predicted until the solution in vaccines. With changes in social systems, the conversion of companies to next-generation technologies is expected to become a reality of after-corona.

These think that a whole new reality gives the future. It is that the times completely select companies. These consider that market participation in the technical standards of giant IT companies and large companies has participation in the future as the only condition of participation.

We believe that these are the arrival of a new society and life in next-generation technology, and on the other hand, they will be given the deceased. These are because self-standards in the super-elite exist as a reality above the peoples in those who do not have those opportunities.

These new societies and lives should be fully acceptable in reality. Because they have the realization of dreams, they exist as a new form of enterprise in next-generation standards.

These are clearly a complete dichotomy of companies, and the perpetuity of the presence of large companies in capital and development, which makes the difference between companies at the cutting edge of the times and those who do not, can no longer be taken away. ..

The only solution for a company is market participation in that standard. This is because the market principle does not accept anything else.