Create the future

Consideration that the economy is not the purpose of the world

KURODA International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

In a world dominated by survival, the economy is the purpose and the glory. But human progress can give the overcoming of survival in technological and academic progress and make the future a reality with another purpose from lives.

The development of progress gives participation in the universe in its education and the creation of new possibilities. These are clearly the arrival of a new era, the reality of the new world in the era of Aquarius.

These ask societies to seek new self-systems, and philosophical considerations point to world contradictions.

These are the choices given to the world. An equal relationship with the universe requires self-progress in its equal conversation in social and philosophical progress on Earth.

Relationships with friends are always on an equal footing.

Infinite possibilities are the existence of its eternal future, and choices make a difference.

Sharing infinite possibilities is sharing of the future, and relationships are given in one's honesty and honest remarks and actions.

These are the current choices. Choice gives the future.
