

KURODA International

Create the future

Wealth of Nations

KURODA International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

Educating people is cultivating a nation. That is, correct upbringing and growth as a human being gives a correct nation, that is, a prosperous nation, along with learning. Since growth exists only in autonomy and awareness, they deny coercion and seek the right educational environment for self-reliance and growth. Free up to college education and the participation of all children give a much higher degree of citizenship in the nation, and its self-standards give much better national standards.

Fostering domestic industry enables the operation of the country in domestic demand as well as political planning, and the independence that accompanies it gives one's responsibility and awareness, and forms a correct nation.

These deny enslavement and give humans future demands for self-reliance and independence. These correctnesses in one's standing clearly give the right nation.

Education will improve its environment and create its future as academic progress process.

The construction of the right society calls for the right judgment in politics, and the provision of political life to the vulnerable gives a new state in social consciousness and responsibility, which gives a new picture of the state in all areas.

What politics seeks for its own correctness is that the nation has its own correctness.