

KURODA International

Create the future

Inevitability of the times in the enterprise

KURODA International LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The social systems and lifestyles associated with the new core infrastructure at the IOT will provide the market with an absolute presence with the participation of leading companies in next-generation technologies. Standards in these technologies and systems are conditions for companies to enter the market in a new era. Prices and technical standards in the global market are inevitable for companies to accept these standards in the unification of the market.

New business standards are set in the world's most advanced MBA systems, creating cutting edge. These give the distribution of companies in the reality. Corporate operating standards are no longer possible in terms of existing to run itself.

Competitive and market forces give that huge capital and the reality of winners and losers. These have a new world of elites.

These are the criteria for market participation of companies in the new era. The absolute core competence in the world megamarket is overwhelmingly self-sufficient.

When seeking observation with its success, its uniqueness provided core competence in emerging IT companies.

Also, in the manufacturing industry, which is represented by major companies, new technical standards are far beyond imagination. These clearly prove a new era in the economy.