

Kuroda International office and access
create the future

Next Society

KURODA International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

The future exists. That is already a reality.

The leap in technology is creating a new world along with academic progress. The handicraft industry in analog is undergoing a social shift to computer management. New energy has a revolution that goes beyond the Industrial Revolution of the 19th century. Participation in space opens up new possibilities to the world.

These new productivity, efficiency and cost efficiency enable the creation of a far superior society and life.

These are overtures of existing changes, and the reality of the future exists. It can no longer be denied by anyone.

Economic theory controls the free economy, and its wealth far exceeds creation. Advances in sociology in the West have finally been given as a promise to realize one's dreams.

Traveling to space seeks that dream within movies. They are a reality in government.

These completely gave the world two divisions. The races are elite and non-elite.

However, the development of basic income and social learning environment will enable all people to participate in this future.

These social transformations are considered to be the only choice for the relief of vulnerable groups as neo-communism.

These are the new worlds of cooperation and harmony, along with the reality of the future, the world is seeking a shift from the suffering of the past to the dream of the future.