Politics always has a responsibility to the people's lives. Imagine that all the people have a basic life equally. It provides housing in advanced smart home systems and has a guarantee of living in basic income. In addition, free education and medical care provide peace of mind in our lives. The new industry in the share economy will realize a world with zero environmental load together with the new core infrastructure in IOT.

These enable government spending and planning to be effectively sought in new cost standards and create a new world in the truth and political decisions of the realization of plans.

The tax system covers these expenditures in the transition to higher tax rates as well as its fairness. In addition, the transition to basic income will abolish the consumption tax and bring about a new reality in raising tariffs and fostering domestic industries.

The fixation of the money supply and the ownership and guarantee of the currency in a clear state call for the correct judgment and action of politics on the trade and self-building of the state, and for the development of the country.

In response to the demand for high tax rates on industries, they will raise tariffs and call for new foreign policies such as withdrawal from the trade organization and the conclusion of trade agreements in bilateral agreements.

These will realize a new society in the cooperation of government and industry.
