

THE OFFICE OF TAKESHI KURODA

MBA system

KURODA INTERNATIONAL LLC
TAKESHI KURODA

Enterprise and production efficiency can be achieved in systematization and the construction of IT environments. Mass production and mass sales are clearly required to participate in the global market, and to establish the soundness and profitability of the company in these. Participation in these markets ensures stable management and profitability of the company in the construction of the corporate system.

Corporate management is required to participate in the market and the times in accordance with the corporate philosophy. Corporate collaboration has the realization of new corporate possibilities.

The acceptance of new reality in the cutting edge of the times should be made in terms of its convenience and practicality, and the new corporate environment has the realization of new possibilities.

CSR and corporate independent social activities are a new form of corporate participation in a new world.

Distribution management in IT systems and maintenance of wholesale sales will enable its high efficiency and new market participation in systems.

These are the needs for building a company's high cost efficiency in new self system. In addition, in mass sales and production, setting a low appropriate profit margin as a cost ratio can realize the construction of higher profitability in mass sales.

Along with business ethics, these enable the realization of clear soundness of the company, the transition to the demand of high profit margin demands new product standards in self-development and design at the cutting edge of the times, and the company in stable management , Participation in the future is allowed.