Create the future

Development as hope for a new world in a nation

KURODA International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

The sharing of political plans and visions for the permissiveness of the times and the construction of a basic national foundation can be realized in reality. These can build new nations in fiscal spending under political planning and new cost standards.

The society gives the administration a plan for standardization to all societies in its time-leading standards, integrity and order, and the new political environment and political agreement can realize the future in the fusion of its technology and life.

Creating the future in collaboration between politics and universities, bureaucrats and industry can build a new nation, along with fostering its own national industry, in development research and execution.

These are agreements for the future and enable the creation of future reality.

Free education and a better income environment for basic income, new tax systems, free medical care, the construction of a future society, and the transition to a better life are politics fulfilling its responsibilities to all citizens. ...

The Declaration of Participation in Space allows its participation in cooperation with space in technology, base infrastructure, and spacecraft.

The creation of a nation in a new philosophy and the future in an idea are that the politician seeks his own will and the people get eternal hope.
