National theory

KURODA International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

The nation is based on education and the right of self and the people together with learning in own independence. These are the correct understandings that human education gives a nation. Because people do the nation.

Politics eliminates all its criminality and seeks itself as a model for the people. In that, the people obey politics.

Political decisions make the reality of the nation. So politics can do everything, and the plan is the right promise.

A nation in independence has a self. Therefore, diplomacy seeks the right choice.

The goodness of people gives a correct evaluation to the nation as well as the development and life of society. Because they are proof of the correctness of state management.

The foundation of philosophical deep cultivation gives the nation a leap. This is because it gives an expansion of humanity and intellect. These are philosophical-based nations that can give their own rightness.

Since the progress of academics gives the progress of society and life, the university base in the nation must create the cutting edge in its development. All good universities were given in their own philosophies.

Industry is a means and life is an purpose. Politics is required to be self in its progress of academics.
