

KURODA International

Create the future

The choice of the future

KURODA International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

The reality of choice gives the future in it. Therefore, politicians have a future.

New possibilities are technological and academic advances, and social change predicts its future. Participation in space gives the world a new future.

These are the basic developments in the nation that, along with their planning, have given new societies and lives, and the reality of the future has given them a new world.

These have the solution of the past as possible in the future.

Opening up the future proves that America's pioneering spirit and the reality of the American dream are not lies, but give the world and the future.

The truth of the realization of the ideal there has the possibility of creating reality in purpose and action.

These can have their reality when all nations seek self-development in their planning. This is because the correct political actions in society, life, and the development of the people realize them.

These are proofs that the creation of a new world is possible, and the consensus and decision in politics gives these realizations possible along with the improvement of the political environment in its academic understanding.