Create the future

Seeking to unify the world

KURODA International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

Is it possible to unify the world? History has war and domination, suffering and sorrow. Will reality challenge these and make it possible to overcome them?

Is the truth that people leave their own interests, live up to their ideals, have a world, and reach the future in their improvement of humanity?

Can politics, in its own judgment, leave itself and gain a shared future and ideals?

These are for humanity to face choices and gain choices for the future.

Choice makes reality. Therefore, politics has its own responsibility.

Having the agreement of world unity for all political parties can create a new future of world unity and participation in the universe.

Is the future of tolerance and cooperation possible from the reality of all discrimination and denial?

I would like to think of this as proof that mankind has a future in the settlement and choice of history.

Choice always creates the future.
