

A national responsibility

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

The state is responsible for protecting its citizens' lives and livelihoods.

The power game is the only reality we may participate in the world. The proper political judgment is the only way we have to prepare.

As you see, this is a survival game. Even all responsibilities of politics are protecting the lives and livelihoods of all people.

Politicians must ask to take all responsibility. That is all duty for their reality.

This only permits a world as so as the future. There is more than any difficulty in reality, but we have only permission to forward to the future.

One thing we have to be sure of in that power game is any realities. That means under all those realities. We may forward any step of ours.

A political decision is any direction of the nation. That politics and king have them all.

As I was trying to create the future, let me ask for an answer from the world.