

A new necessity of moral

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

We have all problems in a society and nation. We may find the solution under the agreement of morals.

As we may know, in an educational environment, all children must have proper morals to spend their lives.

This could be a rule that is required for us to step into the future. Any progress is equally measured with morals. We could know that for our future.

How could we find any differences in all these new realities? To make our nation under own decisions, we may know that we have a complete necessity of morals.

This may be the right measure of its progress. That even gives us new possibilities in any reality.

These are not cheap arguments, but we need the proper morals to ask for progress even with new technologies.

Society must be constructed with its priority of morals as we see any politics that is the same as it.

Even if we agree on new morals in any field of the nation, how could we see the difference between them?

Even we could ask for our decision based on morals. That must be the right future we could create.