

A new world of mutual understanding

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

A lack of mutual understanding causes all conflicts and strife. Therefore, the convergence of war history can explore a new future and world, together with world unity, in fostering mutual understanding among all world nations.

As we see, all conflicts and problems we see in the world's reality. But we may insist that mutual understanding from all arguments gives a solution, but never be with war.

All these must reach a consensus that we are trying to share and seek a new world and future.

The fairness of the United Nations allows the world to make agreements.

How could we find a future? That must be only from mutual understanding, not from Arbitrary.

As we know, the world has power and decides all realities. But we could idealize new rules.

And if we have the progress of self as the progress of all history, it doesn't come from a wrong but correct decision.

A mutual understanding may reach any agreement that is a decision of the world. And we could achieve all unification of the world even.

As we see all social and environmental problems, we could ask for all solutions under all these consensuses.

It may grow a new world even. How could we expect a world? We may have a full of participators.

Any possibility should not be closed. We have a decision for the future.