

A next society

November 28th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

New technology and the future await the next society under a new system and framework. These are the potentials we have today, given the possibility of political consensus.

We need the vision and consensus of the next society, Which may be based on the new system and any agreement and framework.

As we can find, all industries have their creation of new society, So there must be required industrial plans to realize all new societies.

We need a complete design of them to realize them under political leadership.

The next society must be based on new social and national systems, even with economy and administration.

We can see these are the evolutionary changes and shifts in all IT systems and new technologies.

We may gather all new talent from any field of the nation and redesign all social environments and infrastructures.

And we see that all academics may lead all these realities under all use of any progress of their learnings.

And politics has its own decisions. And they may have the opportunity to realize all the new societies.

What may be your decision for the future? We are facing any possibility today or in the future.

We can redesign all systems and realities of society under any progress of any realities. If I have a decision, I give full permission to them and rea create all national environments.