

A shift from competition and conflict to a new consensus

June 12th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Removing ourselves from these power games is a choice for a new future. Both sides can achieve destruction in the conflict.

These issues, along with environmental problems, pose a future crisis.

In that sense, our country can take the lead in resolving these issues and propose a new future in lieu of pointless conflict.

So that we may propose a new future to the world that must be idealized, and we determine ourselves to realize them in the future.

And we are forced to choose since we have all world crises. A consensus on a world free of war and suffering is possible in that cooperation.

How can we find all reality? We have to ask for leadership in all politics.

This is a way we may find the future with hope.

And we can see that this is a choice in the future.

An agreement of peace and conscience may have the future as it makes all world progress in history.

It is possible to realize the future of your dreams through determination and action. All reality can be realized through action.

We have to seek all new heroes in the political field. He must be the one who gives us the hope and future.