

A world focused on new ideals.

May 10th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

There is a double standard that seeks to create a new world with its ideals. As we may imagine that people celebrate those realities, but instead, we need to be aware of all the realities of the world.

We may be aware of all the realities of populism. But we may have doubts about whether they can make a new world.

The United Nations may be a pole that serves as a new ideal, gathering the whole world under its banner of justice.

Under all these new circumstances, we need to know all the tales of the surface. Truth has only permission to ask for a world.

Under all these circumstances, we may find a point of view called evils, and if we use all ideals and justice to seek their purpose, what should be on our mind?

As we may wonder, all new progress in systems and technology may hold the key to our future. We need to consider how to combat it.

These realities inevitably divide the world, and this division must be between affluence and idealism, on the one hand, and poverty and decadence, on the other.

We should not stand against these realities, but rather prepare for the changes to come.

However, without the truth, we may not follow any media ideas, but we must stand by the truth and realities.

We may know that, under all these circumstances, Langley may possess the world, and they try to make all their plans accordingly.