Political decisions and agreements by international society may promise all peoples a new future. Equal social conditions may be given under all progress for new ages to shift new lifestyles.

All these are the recreation of all society and social systems through new technologies and systems.

If politics takes any responsibility for all people, we have to serve any fundamentals of life to all people.

We can see that all these are the ideas of new socialism to recreate a new society.

And these may be the new consensus of any agreement of international society to shift to the next society.

As we consider the mission of all politics, these are all duties for all people.

All new technology and systems, such as digitalization, can change all social environments and livelihoods from the past to the future.

Power games may stand by new philosophy and humanism under any reality of all politics. These are all the irony we have with the world.

To expand all these ideas, we may find new world politics in which we may share the same ideas.

Politics always takes full responsibility for all people. That is an attitude we must ask for in any reality.

We may dream of a world and the future, so we must act by ourselves.
