

Back to the future

January 31st, 2026

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The world has its chaos. We can't find any visions into the future.

Instead of the whole of reality, we may have a new consensus of the world. These are caused by new dialogue that may lead to new cooperation with the world.

We have to share the same ideas. These are considered by all new talent to be progress in all areas of academics.

People from the same world with the same ideas can come together with the same aspirations.

Dialogue may be the way to reach the same ideas while accepting the same visions. Then we can work for the world under a new consensus.

All this cooperation should not be limited to the ground, but should extend to the skies above. It means we can seek cooperation from the universe.

We have many new technologies and systems underway across academia, and we may see new designs and decisions emerge.

These are the possibilities we may find right in front of us all. And any decision may realize them in the future.

And any progressed human sources with their intelligence may propose a new world under the use of all its academics.

These are how we may gather to discuss a new world, and we need answers, since we have any realities of the world

Reality is the only existence we can work with. And these are our decisions against any reality of the world itself.