

Building your economy and system in political control

November 7th, 2023

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Building a self-reliant and independent country's economy and system will be realized through political control and political judgment in all industrial fields.

These require economic security and foreign policy and propose the creation of a national economy and independent economic zone based on an independent economic system and digital currency.

The economy could build reality in new possibilities. The highest technology owns its use for the creation of any realities.

There are required ideas for the construction of one's economic systems. We have new technology that gives us the use of new systems.

The industrial base is always the base of one's own country. These things make the future possible.

New technology and systems could allow us to recreate the nations fully. That must be all from our industries.

These are the proper national decisions and plans to ask for any realities in the future.

Suppose we ask for any confusion in the future. Own economy could serve all safes and possibilities in all realities.

Industry is the basis for making any realities. That forces us to make the right decisions and plans. Plans could realize all its visions.

Under national security, these are the right decisions for self and the future.