

Capitalism and liberalism

August 25th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Possessions are permitted under capitalism. And its value may cause the demand itself. These are the rules of capitalism.

Liberalism accepts all people's choices and decisions. They have complete freedom to seek for their life and the future.

These are any reality of all existing. Under all these, the world seeks consensus and agreement for the future.

If the world is possessed under all these laws, what do we find with all these rules? And any effect from Langley makes all reality of the world. What do we think of the world?

But any liberty permits all beings to seek life and purpose. Capitalism allows the possession of value for its labor.

Under fairness and its systems, we have a complete, proper understanding of its system.

But we have new ideas for reviving the world under new systems. If any progress in history is with its philosophy of socialism, when we seek the future, we need our progress in self to rebuild new civilizations with future reality.

But we have all its consideration of reality under any progress of all academics. They may serve all new reality equally as its progress of self.

These are the fundamental and core of any reality, including the world itself. When we ask for any progress in the world, we need a philosophy of its tails.

Politics need their academic bases to know everything and create a new one. Knowledge is all based on when we ask for the future.

