

Capitalism of desire

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Desire and inspiration for wealth are engines of capitalism. They have all creation of the world as the future.

All youth dream of wealth and stepping into the business field. Capitalism is a reality of desire.

And we find a free economic system. These are the field of dreams.

All desire and inspiration are bases for reality as we could seek a new world. We must see that righteous passion and inspiration can find a moral world.

All desires for wealth and competition contain themselves with all reality of the economy. All these have a justice called a free economic system.

As I insisted that new socialism has full of justice against all the above realities. These are based on basic income and new social systems.

We may find all the existing economic system mistakes as we see all the socially vulnerable.

The competition gives a hierarchy by capital with a law of capitalism. Capitalism provides a direction that is called wealth.

As we imagine, the paradise that may not be sought any pain. That causes us to reach new social systems under now a trend of new technologies.

We need a new rule if we find any inquiries to make a new world. As we try to create a new world and social systems, we have new money systems in the future under all planed.

Digital society has full of efficiency. We could find all comfortability in any reality. That gives us the idea that we need new systems. Realists always seek a reality but dreams. We from our office are in touch with any realities we could see in the future.