

Consensus building to establish a world government in Africa, Asia, and South America through a majority vote at the United Nations

KURODA International Consulting
Takeshi Kuroda

At the United Nations, we could ask for a vote for the world government. We may take a majority and make the world government.

On the other hand, we see a new world order. They may ask for all their realities. But we are trying to stand against them.

We would find two different realities in the world under all new circumstances. We could discover the separation of the world.

But we are forwarding to the creation of all our world. We have new space ages we can work for. But we must see that we need to make wars against any reality we would stand against.

As we see, we have Armageddon at this age, but we are trying to be away from it and seek a new world.

All these show us the necessity of the creation of all our realities. We need our free trade alliance, military alliance, and money system.

All these bases of our reality only permit us to stand with any realities. Any expansion, any reality we could find under all these bases.

And we have new space ages that include any alliance and the new reality we could share.

We have a new reality under all new circumstances and new technologies. We have a new creation of the world that is undoubtedly a new future.

We are trying to step into the universe in all our new realities. These are based on all political consensus and agreement. And we are determined ourselves to realize all new realities.