

Consideration of a new world system that will replace liberalism

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Liberalism is the only justice with have in the world. On the other, inhumanity is called evil against liberalism. We are trying to seek a new world with new systems.

With consideration of new philosophy, we could find a new world. Waiting for a new technological civilization, we are trying to reach a new system under new philosophy.

The equality that we may calculate all reality, then what we have in our mind? Fairness could be an all-agreement of the world that permits the future's sanity.

A new social, national, financial, and economic system could be possible on the base of a new world.

Liberalism has problems with freedom. Along with that comes social ethics. We want to propose a new social system by requesting both solutions simultaneously and systematizing them. This is a neo-socialist idea.

A society based on equality and human rights proposes the creation of a new reality, with the system's fairness as a consensus—these demand the provision of basic livelihoods for all as a political duty.

Against capitalism and the free economic system, against wealth inequality, it becomes possible to propose a new financial system based on a consensus of fair rules.

All these are based on the coming technological civilization and the new space age. All these are the requirement of fairness and sanity in the world.

All these are not forced by but based on people's agreement.

A new world may accept the sanity of the system, and we have more with all further creations of the future.