

Creating a world without suffering

April 6th, 2024

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

This is the ideal of humanity, and we can come to a new consensus with them. And we may redesign the nation under all its consensus.

These force us to make a new society and livelihood. And politics must ask their duty.

We have all new technology that gives us new use to live and evolve socially.

We are asking for a new design for the nation, and the bureaucrat gives all the details of the vision and plans.

And any politics has its own decision. The decision is a reality that we will find in the future.

All these are based on the progress of any academics. And it creates new realities. We consider these under full cooperation in any field of the nation.

We need our consensus to recreate the nation. We have domestic industry and all the new progress in academics and technologies.

We may have a choice. That is how we could dream of the future. And politics do them and give us the future.

All skilled and talented human sources may give us out of any limitation of reality that might be called the future.

And if we have any contact with the universe, they would give us the vision of the future.

Politics may dream and give a new vision to all his people, and they must follow all the decisions of politics.

If the future is only uncertain, the decision is a future itself.