

Creation of new possibilities for the future

December 29th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

New technology and progress of all academics and new systems may recreate the world. And politics makes all the decisions about it.

We are determined to recreate the world and make all things new. We must know that these are the decisions and actions of all politicians.

These may be the realities of domestic policy. We are trying to redesign the nation based on the progress of academics, their use, and the new technology and systems developed by domestic industries.

How could we calculate any possibility in the world? That is the proper idea for us to recreate any reality. And adequate consensus for all politics.

And new talent must be highly educated to participate in making all their new ideas under any political decisions.

If any contact with the universe of its residents, what is a new relationship to share all the progress of academics, which must give us new potentials of space technology and social constructions as expanding new possibilities to the universe?

We face these new realities, and politics does interact with the new realities of the nation and the world.

So, we must know that all politics must understand all these new realities and ask for a new consensus in all politics.

We see that we need to establish new relationships with all nations of the world, which means we have to change all our attitudes and use diplomacy to achieve this.

Politics always makes anything with reality by his decisions.