We need new rules to enter the new world. These are the ideas we use when facing any reality. Replacing realities may be under new regulations as we propose any agreement with its basis.

The transformative potential of new technology and systems is staggering. It empowers us to reshape our world and extend our reach into the universe. However, to fully harness this potential, we need a solid foundation for the world we are entering.

Compared with our reality world, I could suggest a new world under new rules and systems. I am trying to change and redesign itself.

Agreement may be compared with direction and decision itself. Any nation should accept the new governance of the world.

All nations must standardize a new social system, and society and life must be shared under the same standard with its cooperation.

These are due to the shift from the past to the future. We have made progress in reality today.

On the other hand, we have all the realities of the world, which we may not forget and cannot escape.

We need our vision to make a new world. And we are trying to redesign them for the future.

If we take new steps into the world, it will create new realities. We need to determine the future.

If we follow any realities, what can we find with us in the future?

Change is a result. We make things anew. Who has a vision of the world? We need our cooperation to create a new world.
