

Creation of the future

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

All new technology and systems, Space participation, and academic progress make them possible to create a new world.

Own industries with new economic systems have possible to seek new realities. These are under the political decision to shift self to the future.

There is a word, as we found in a book with Next society. We are trying to create the next society. Political consensus and decisions make them possible to create new realities.

Political consensus gives the plan to settle new industries. The top quality and technology must cover any field of industry. The administration must be under a new computer system linked with live food.

Capital defense and industrial security make their own diplomatic and political agreements.

These are the proper action to seek our realities and the future. As we found that these are the sift to the future.

And new investment in new space technology must ask for its use for realities. As military needs to shift them with new technology and systems.

These could be bases for seeking any changes in the world and creating our reality in the world.

These conditions are the development of the industry on own capital and the construction of the state's independence.

As we found that this is only permission, we could seek a future.