An ideal may be an agreement reached through any dialogue at an International conference. They may face any reality of the world, but agreement has the promise of realization.

But today we do not have a decision of the world, we can only follow all realities. And these are the ideas of revolutions.

We can find all new talent in any field of the world today. They have all the potential to make the world new. They need all opportunities.

We may know how we could cooperate. We may share the same idea and the future, which may give a new world.

And the hope may be an agreement that we can only carry the world from the past to the future.

As we progress through the ages, we may create more possibilities than we can imagine in the world as we reach the future.

Dialogue is a way we can share any understanding and knowledge, and it may possibly give us a new world itself.

Riotousness is any basis under all these realities, and it may give us all contrast against all realities of the world.

And we can propose all these ideas to all politicians. They have all their decision of the world.

Limitation may not have to be an agreement, since we are trying to make all our steps into an unlimited universe at this moment of ages.

These are the arguments of the world which we are insisting from our office to the world.
