

Creation of the next society

April 10th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

New efficiency and productivity give us all an abundance of new livelihoods, which is called the next society. The latest technology and systems have all new possibilities to shift any reality to the future.

Who may decide to shift the current society to the next society? We could design the new world.

These require the basis of its framework and philosophy. Any economy, finance, and social system may be based on the coming society. We also must agree on zero-emission and circular economy.

Technology makes all new comfort possible in the new society. That is what we call the next society. Rebuilding new infrastructure with new standards of technologies and any transportation and communication may be used under the next generated standard,

The economy was created through the advancement of technology. While we have a free economic system today, we need new plans and designs to reestablish society's reality.

All these are massive technological and systems progress. These are new commons in which we find new lifestyles.

We need all its new human sources who may give the future itself. And we see that any progress in academics in any field may create all the reality under academics.

We may know these are under-determined by every new political consensus. These are the shifts from any standard to the next generated one, which has all new social cycles and makes all new societies.

These are the reconstruction of current society to new technological civilizations with all use of new technologies, and these are all the progress of any livelihood to new futures.