

Crisis of the world

December 8th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The world has two different realities: one of right-wing global conflict and the other of reconciliation and unity.

Agreement on fulfilling responsibilities to the world can bring about a new world and its unity.

These are the different attitudes toward any reality we may encounter in the future, making different realities under any concern for all realities.

We are only permitted to move on to the military above these circumstances since we have justice in the world.

These will first realize the formation of a new global group in economic cooperation, then the formation of self-presence in the world in sharing and standardization of the next generation of society, and finally, the development of military forces together with alliances.

All these are the agreement to the new world under sharing its full responsibility. This is how we can stand against all future changes.

Forming a self-group through the unification of finance and currency, sharing a new social system, etc., would propose the participation of all nations in the world, allowing us to share the same ideals and explore a new world.

These divides in reality at the UN allow it to make the debate public and demand a choice from the world.

These are entirely separate from the liberal camp and realize proposals for a new world in their philosophies and ideals.

Therefore, there is an urgent need to have a reality equal to theirs.