We propose a new national polity in response to the incompatibility of the times and reality. This proposal, after thorough and meticulous consideration, will lead to the construction of a new national system. The new ideological fundamentals in economy, society, and diplomacy, along with philosophical considerations and our historical background, will propose the formation of a unique nation.

All these do not require conflict with the globe but seeking a new relationship under new diplomacy.

Liberalism is all reality on the others. We have all irony with all reality we have. We must solve them all and rebuild all reality under new systems.

We may see that these are recreations of the nation's readiness to face any reality we have right in front of us, including all new technologies.

We are trying to share all ideals to find ourselves in the future. We need all new talent to argue for the future itself.

The reality of this new future is established by giving ownership and sovereignty of the state to the people.

Politics will clearly bring about a transition from the existing state system to a new state system by convening all talented people and ordering them to build a new state.
