

A divided world and a new reality in the future

March 24th, 2026

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Conflict may be caused by the same habit in history. These are the principles of humanity called survival principles.

As we calculate all history of wars, the survival principle is the basis of those realities. And it may cause all conflicts.

If we may conquer all survival principles, how do we find a new world? These are all serious matters for which we may ask for arguments.

So we had proposed to argue a new philosophy. If they have an answer, we may realize a new world under new systems.

We can find that capitalism and liberalism are based on the principle of survival. And those definitions of humanity may not be changed in any history.

These are the dialogues we may propose to a world, and may find new world systems evolving all our progress.

We can see how the world may be changed. And these are the ideas we may share to find a new future itself.

On the other hand, we have made progress in technologies today. These are given under free economic systems.

We may know the law of the world. But we still can't be away from survival principles.

In a future new abundance, we may forget ourselves from all survival requirements. But on the other hand, we need ourselves with a new philosophy.

And these may be a result of all our progress from the past to the future.