

Kuroda International

Takeshi Kuroda

The economy dominates the world. There is no doubt about it. The economy has its own in capital. This is the reality of the world.

The economy is always based by giving survival, and that is the purpose of forming a competitive society. The Chicago school's belief in free economics is that it meets all living needs with a free trade and economic system.

However, these give the contradiction of the formation of the hierarchy and the dichotomy of the world. These give the Mobius ring of poverty and moral decadence in dichotomy, and the elite's condemnation of it.

These are the good sense and conscience of society. These social conflicts create all problems permanently.

These are the realities of a free economy in which the economy produces demand for survival. This is because freedom gives the harshest reality, and the reality of freedom has its magical power.

On the other hand is a controlled society in communism.

Freedom creates competition and gives winners.

It is the need in the individual gives judgment to them. This is the formation of the free world.

In truth there is a final war between the controlled world and the free world. This is the north wind and the sun, and the answer in reality can only be asked in reality. This means that the dice roll will never be known.

This is the truth of free will, and everything that forms the world.

Free will symbolizes its non-slave self, and it is always the free world that gives free will the right self.

This is that the new winner has the world, which forms history forever.