Politics has its duty and responsibility for all people's lives and the future.

These could be a consensus for us to seek a future. New attitudes and actions may give us all different realities.

Power games make all governance of any realities. These are the result of all history with a war.

Citizenism seeks rights and advocates freedom. We need a future that is beyond any doubt we could agree on. But who may give us the future?

We need someone who takes all responsibility for the world. The most must run away from all its responsibilities, but one may take all and give us the future.

To see the world, we have all suffering and pains; however, there are new trends and wealth that all people admire and follow.

The righteous world must serve the fundamental lives of all people. These are the duty and proper agreements of the world as we are trying to ask for new steps in the future.

We need a future, and it comes from any decisions. These are fights against inertia and habitual succession, and determination and execution are the aspirations for the future.

We may have a dream in the future since all new technology promises us a new future.

Not with any occupation, but all these new worlds must give all people with its participation.

Politics may determine the future. That is the hope of all people.
