

Economic policy

August 17th, 2024

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Rules and conscience must govern domestic economic policy. That may build a righteous economy, not seeking profit but duty and responsibility.

The economy is not a money game; it is a lifeline. Therefore, we need rules and morals to ensure its security.

These reconstruct any industry and financial system under morals with new rules. We may know that we are moving to the latest digital economy, but all tales of itself must ask for righteous regulations.

There are all movements of globalization, which is a reality built into the threats in every nation.

Huge capitals are any tails of the world economy. If we ask for our independence, we need our security against them.

Any basis of economy is a tool of diplomacy since all nations need to be self-sufficient in progress and development.

If we find the world's truth, the world financial group controls all economies. That means the economy is tooled under capitalism. And they have all realities under financial systems.

Security and diplomacy may be remarked upon when facing any world reality. We all have the potential to form our economic groups.

Technology has competition under free trade systems, which occupy all world realities.

These are the reasons we need our economic policy to protect and righteous the growth of nations.