

Economics in Supply and Demand and Free Economic Systems

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

The economy has a rule called a free economic system that covers all demand by its supply. All these amebae must not be perfect, but all freedom of activity is accepted.

An economy must cover any field of society and reality, the other with politics. All demands of life and society are from an economy which could be an extensive measure of reality that the world makes with the importance of self.

And we find that money controls the world. And we may know that this is a reality caused by capitalism. We could seek a new world system if all these money controls are denied.

There are all changes we may put ourselves in reality today. With new technology, they create a new world.

All new business standards force us a new measure with efficiency and technology. That is all trend we have to follow.

But the economic standard is simple. There are demand and supply. But all requirement of those asks for massive progress in the market.

We have a new system under MBA standards. The business has changed itself in a new future.

We must find in those with the existence of core competence. A market brushes this up, has all use, and is efficient in reality.

All these are changes that are the progress of any business. Efficiency could be expected with a high-profit rate. Industry 4.0 gives a new production standard.

All these are the necessity for new business steps into the global market. Any reality only asks for progress but degeneration.