New space ages and new technology permit a new possibility in reality, and we may ask for our decision in the future.

These are new visions of new futures, and we may find that all these are our new possibilities in our new future.

It means we have the opportunity to redesign the world and its future. We may gather all human resources and talent to reconsider the world.

Away from any conflict, a new governance of the world may serve as the new world and any possibilities.

Besides, with ideas, any use and progress of all academics may be used to recreate the world. And politics do decide the world itself. And we see that politics must lead them all under its action and understandings.

We are trying to recreate the world anew—and tools rea with any academics who must ask for all use to recertify any realities.

New world systems are based on the progress of all academics and have new possibilities for rebuilding any realities in the world.

Discussions among all bureaucrats and scholars can create visions and templates for a new world and make the new world and system a reality through political decisions.

We may know that all new civilizations must be based on new systems. We have a new technological civilization with a new reality and a full concern for the universe.

We have proposed a new world with new systems; politics must take over and need them to make all their decisions.
