

Farewell to the past

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

The creation of the future under all new technology and social system ask for a farewell to the past. Instead of any hobbit of the past should be replaced by academic considering.

A new world with a new rule. Even any reality from the West may be considered to be a new world.

These are the requirements of a new technological civilization waiting for the future.

Any reality must be reconsidered in the coming future. We need a new system for new technological changes.

Politics must lead all these reconstructions of reality. And new consensus may be based on all recent changes.

Academics are all bases we may ask for the future. Education must follow them.

By asking for the use of all new systems and technologies, we have the possibility to create a contemporary society and life. That is all from any decision of politics.

New investments and plans from politics must be under all these measures. Any infrastructure must be built by contemporary standards.

We need a design of a new society from political consensus.

These are indeed the things that politics must realize to redevelop cities and societies, which require the most deliberation.

We may know that these are the creation of the future so that we may dream of them in our reality.