Politics must take full responsibility for all people with the most basic life and abundance as human beings.

All these could propose a new social system as basic income. These are the ideas for all people to have equal fundamental life conditions.

Politics may ask for consensus, which is a duty for all people. We see that conscience may be common in this new society.

These are the result of a change in politics. That means the world follows politics.

New technology and systems have new potential for society, and all new efficiency and comfort are the future itself.

Politics may design the world and even the future.

If politics has a duty and responsibility for people, it must be for all people, not for a part.

Reconstruction of society must be based on society's 5.0 standard, and we have a new lifestyle. And it gives all efficiency and new possibilities.

As we find education, education must be free, and all opportunities must serve all people.

We could imagine that all people without failure have been served fundamental life, and a new society gives them all-purpose and means.

Politics take all duty of those realities and make their actions and plans.

All decisions determine the future. Politics possess them.
