

Foreign Affairs

June 15th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

To argue that any agreement may be given under a new consensus. Which means we need a new responsibility for the world and the future that all nations must share.

These are the agreements of the new world, which contain all the new possibilities for the future.

But we can see that we have all the difficulties and crises of the world. And all these diplomatic agreements are made to face and cooperate against any reality that may arise in the future.

And all politics must encompass a new world plan and vision, and this may involve proposals and agreements in foreign affairs.

And this is the only possibility we can seek for a reality that may stand against the world, and we may see that all the basis of the group may equally ask for any dialogue and seek any reality that may be caused.

From all these perspectives, all discussions may shape the world, so these are serious matters we must face.

Not following any reality, we are trying to create entirely new dialogues, which is what we offer to contribute to the world's decisions.

We need to reach the same consensus and agreement, and with which we are trying to share the same decision of the world.

If all these dialogues are to decide the road, what's on your mind?

We are trying to establish a new world principle through our dialogue.