

Forming the New World

July 8th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

New designs for the world may be accepted under all the changes we have today with the latest technology and systems, as we can find that new technological civilization may be based on new systems and frameworks.

While it may seem like the end of capitalism, it's also the beginning of a new future. This transition presents an opportunity for a fresh start, inspiring hope and optimism.

We have a new relationship with the universe, as they have all their technologies. We are undoubtedly facing all these changes.

As we navigate these transformative times, politics must evolve and shoulder new duties and responsibilities. These are the blueprints for the new world.

We may ask for its basis by considering all academic progress, so we need all its human resources, talent, and skills.

It is a new era that has all new possibilities. From any of its past, we are stepping into new technological civilizations.

This causes changes and redesigns the world under new systems and rules.

We have a little idea of the future now. We can find out who can give us the future: a politician. So, if we are given a real politician, we can be served in the future.

Any disappointment and hopeless reality as we put ourselves into the Gaza Strip or Ukraine. Real politicians give us an answer to all of history.

How could we reach the future? There is a way to get it. We must be wise to know that we may find it. We have to find the truth. We need one who gives us a new world.