

Freedom, Desire, and Competition

September 11th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

The demands and competition of animality, with its liberalism, affirm the reality of desire.

We see that any survival requirement is any root and fundamental that contains any reality of the world.

We have insisted that a new philosophy can be based on new work, which must be compatible with all the latest technology and systems.

Desire and liberalism attract all peoples, which is following any effect of Langley.

With your participation and understanding, we can transform desire and competition into intelligence and coexistence, making you an integral part of this process.

These are the creations of the new world we may dream of.

Away from any competition, we find new socialism with the latest social system as basic income.

We have a new world created by new technology and subsequent progress of any realities. However, we need control of politics, which creates new societies and nations.

We can redesign all reality under new standards, which is the new basis of any political actions.

New intelligence creates a new world, so we must gather all human resources and talent, including all skills and abilities.

Politics always leads to any reality as we are trying to seek a new world and the future.

These are the creation under any use of academics and its progress.