NATO's actions limited to all arms supplies are limited to restrictive actions in deterring Russia's nuclear arsenal. But the inability of the international community to deny these aggressions is a contradiction, and they can only be attributed to the reality of the New World Order.

What kind of changes can we imagine when we shift our focus to the new reality of Taiwan?

The justice and reality of the West, along with justice, declares to protect Taiwan. With US forces stationed in Japan and South Korea, war can predict chaos in Far East Asia.

But we put our eyes on international society, and all opinions must be the last decision in the future that we are equally faced with.

All justice must be with United Nations, and they would forward it to the world government.

And we could find justice in the world, and it must cover any reality of the world under new systems of the world.

These are the creation of the new world, and This is an Anglo-Saxon mission. With world war 2nd. Japan is trapped, and they have lost the war.

We find a similarity at this moment with the world from world war 2nd, which is how we used to ask for the world. To be wise that we may know the world.

And this is the last understanding we need to know who agrees with all these realities, and this is the only permission we could work for the world.

A dark night may not have a dawn. That is any reality we have today. And we see courage is only escaping from hell but a way to have hope.
