

Guarantee Basic livelihood and a world without suffering.

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Politicians ask themselves and make a consensus to guarantee a primary livelihood to all people and a new social system with basic income. What makes a difference in reality?

All academic and technological realities today permit us to seek a new future with a better life. A world without suffering may not be an illusion.

That means we are facing a choice in the future. All these offer a solution for any problem of reality.

All these are with the creation of better life and society with a new system as society 5.0.

In reality today, these are asked by its responsibility in any realities. But as I described, all socially vulnerable do not have skills. Then politics shift to new socialism.

It is a proposition to create a world with a new consensus of equality, away from the occupation of the world by the strong and the elite.

These social systems could save all the weak and socially vulnerable. Even who may lose any opportunities?

We found that these are only bases for creating the new world. We have more than any possibility we have today.

Who has a dream? I insist that all these dreams may not be an illusion but in reality.

This determines that this is a shift from capitalism and competition to new socialism.

We could propose the world with hopes but any disappointment.
