

History and civilization, its rise and fall

Office
of
September 7, 2022

Takeshi Kuroda

History has given birth to diverse civilizations, and today the world has its end. Its rise and fall are justified historical exaltations that give war and victory glory. These are glorified in the victorious view of history, and the heroes live in the past. On the other hand, these victories are admired, and the losers leave history. They are still the same, though they have an altered reality of success and prosperity today. If these are the lights of history, the suffering of the weak is the darkness of the other side of reality. Wealth is what drives the world in history. It is the same today. This historical permanence makes victory and prosperity in war a reality. These are the worlds forever forming hierarchies, and the fact, greed has defeated the principle of equality in communism.

Western civilization, liberalism, and humanitarianism are the trends in the world today. It is the same in history that the winner makes the world. Academic progress and efficiency in the pursuit of convenience gave reality superiority and victory in war. On the other hand, ethical norms provide distinction from primitive societies. These are from the progress of Western civilization. As a result, they have a world.

War is, in truth, all of history. It has its end in the unity of the world in progress. The strange reality is that the winning fact does it in all facts. These are the result of all history of this planet, and we must ask who may give other answers.

Advances in intelligence today give participation in the universe, and they seek the future of eternity. History has finally reached the reality of the universe. These technological and academic advances are the foundation of the West and the ideals of the future today as a reality.

The consideration of history is the progress of humanity in the only intelligence. It has a new world today with the unification of the world. These intellectual advances in history formed an absolute power in the advancement of technology and gave rise to the creation of reality in fabulous presence.

These exist as the truth of the end of history. On the other hand, the progress of decency confronts power, which gives eternity the choice of the world.

The office of Takeshi Kuroda