

Humanity and Socialism

November 27th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The competition principle is based on survival demands. All these have occupied any realities in the past.

Shift may offer us a new future. So we insist on a new rule by humanity and socialism. As for more, we have all the progress of technology and systems that permit us to provide the next society.

And it may expand to make new world systems which may not be occupied by survival demand, but seeking all the purposes of our beings,

With any progress of humanity, we are standing way back in the future. And, based on all our experience in the past, we have our choices for the world today.

The new system is the basis of the future. And we have all the new technologies today. These are the considerations of all reality from the past to the future,

Under all its ideas, we may reconsider the world with a new philosophy. We need to reach the answer.

All these may be the result of our progress in history. These are the transformations of the world system in their fullness, revolutionary transformations of reality.

These are our proposals for international politics. And if it comes with a new consensus, we may find a different future.

Change is a way to shift to the future. We have all the evolutionary changes today.

Politics may only determine the world. We, KURODA International Consulting

LLC, may be pleased to propose a new world.