

If the choice goes with a future

April 8th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

In any international politics, the choice is the future itself. And we have all the necessities to seek a new future.

If your choice is the future itself, what is your choice? And all kings always determine the world.

So, under a new decision called choice of self, we may put ourselves under redesigning the world.

Suppose all choices are allowed to show him the future. How could you design them? These are the cases if we have our decisions for the world, but choices always make realities from all the past to any future.

But we have an idea of how we can create a new world. We have a tool of dialogue, which may lead to a consensus on the new world.

Let's allow ourselves to be at an international conference and argue to reach a new international principle and agreement. We have all the potential under the contract to create a new world.

With any dialogue, we may propose new ideas and any consensus under the full judgment against the world's new reality with humanism.

These are given under any opportunity with a world, and with which we have our choice to redesign the world.

If we can make any hopes with the world, that may be the paradise we have dreamed of, and any effort and choice of ours may make it real.