

Information and diplomacy, military and development

Kuroda International Foundation

Takeshi Kuroda

Information gathering is the only thing that allows state management in its analysis. These are capable of determining state operations and guidelines in collection and analysis.

From this point of view, we should know that information only gives the nation. The CIA and political organizations in the United States, the reality in the Commonwealth of Nations, the information gathering and analysis in Israel, and the building of a nation in these standards only give participation in the reality of the world.

Things to keep in mind in the world are cutting-edge and technology in the military, reality in space development, correlation between academic inventive step and reality, analysis under political organization with correct reality, capital owner in industry and its technology, etc. Think of it as the right decision to participate in change.

The deployment of the army and its coordination has its presence in the world. Diplomacy is the right decision to give the maintenance and formation of reality.

These are correct understandings and standards for improving the domestic operation and infrastructure environment, and correct political operation must always seek equality with the world.

For diplomatic cooperation, the trade, information agreements, and military agreements will be realized in the formation of self-groups with reference to the Western and free camps.

Since the free camp has justice and ideology, its equal relationship with them realizes the relationship building in the agreement that mutual benefit, and their self-inventive step in humanitarianism.